| The only thing I disagree with in regards to grading was attendance. I think since we are still in the middle of a pandemic that it is not fair or a good idea to grade our attendance. There were a couple of days I had cold–like symptoms and I didn't want to come to class to avoid getting anyone sick; however, that jeopardized my grade in the class. |

| I really enjoyed this course. I liked the content and thought it was taught well however it was a little difficult for being an intro ethics class. |
| As someone who has never taken a PHILOSOPHY course before I would recommend others to start with a lower level before taking this course, because of how intensive it was it made it difficult to understand everything. |
| It is a good course for people to enjoy |
| Very interesting. Great selections as far as readings. |

He is an extremely personable and approachable instructor
Joonho is an amazing instructor, connects with his students, and is very clear with what he expects from the students.
Joonho Lee did a solid job for his first time teaching a class on his own! I think a lot of things will come with further experience teaching, particularly how to engage the students during lectures. This was something that he struggled with, like when he would ask us if we had any questions and the class would remain silent. I think we did have questions, but were unclear on how to go about asking them. The way I thought of it, we don't know what we don't know. Maybe asking specific questions would be more beneficial? I think he'll get the hang of things as he continues teaching.
I thought Professor Lee was a fantastic professor, the content was taught well and interesting. Professor Lee was funny and easy to listen to he also really cared about the students doing well and understanding the material. I would consider him one of my best professors this semester. The class was challenging but he really cared about us all doing well and succeeding.
He was a good professor but when we would ask questions he didn't really understand what we were asking and couldn't really explain the material to us.
Joonho was a great lecturer. He cared about the subjects he was teaching, and made sure we were clear on the information presented before moving on.
He is a good professor. He allows his students to learn in a quick and fashionable way
Helpful, knowledgeable

While I wouldn't say that our classroom environment was negative exactly, I think it could be pretty awkward. This was partially some of the students who took the class, who came to class but didn't speak up at all. But I also think we didn't have very many opportunities to develop comments or question. Having more time for small discussions would be a good idea for the future!

| When it comes to the essays we had to write, I would just recommend in the future to write the instructions and what you're expecting on the syllabus or in the description of the assignment on Canvas. There were times you just briefly told us what you expected in class which left me and a few students leaving class confused or with a lot of questions. |
| There were so many things that were unclear in this course, not to mention that his notes were very confusing. |

The class is extremely lecture–heavy. There were times we were put into groups to discuss the topics we covered in class; I would DEFINITELY recommend doing that more often since it mixes up the normal note–taking routine and we can also become engaged with our fellow students.

Thanks for a great class!
The instructor was amazing, had great teaching techniques, had clear expectations, connected with students, was personal but not too involved. Funny jokes and good commentary, the course content was harder so he did a good job balancing the somewhat boring content with good commentary.
Overall it was a great class! I would just recommend not grading attendance while we are still in a pandemic and mixing up the class routine instead of us just coming to class to take notes for an hour and a half every day.
I think that a lot of the challenges of the class will be worked out through experience teaching! Thanks for teaching us this semester, and good luck in the future!
Professor Lee did a great job, I think the class could use some more group discussion but other then that I thought the class was insightful and interesting and taught extremely well.
Try to include more discussions in your lectures because it so helpful to understand how other people are interpreting the information.
I enjoyed your class!
Appreciate your help and understanding
Joonho was a great teacher, always encouraged feedback and questions. Felt super comfortable in his classroom
